Good practices, or ‘competencies’, are foundational professional strengths that help all caseworkers to do their job well. Competencies underpin the way in which a caseworker approaches a situation, driving their behaviour and guiding their level of success.

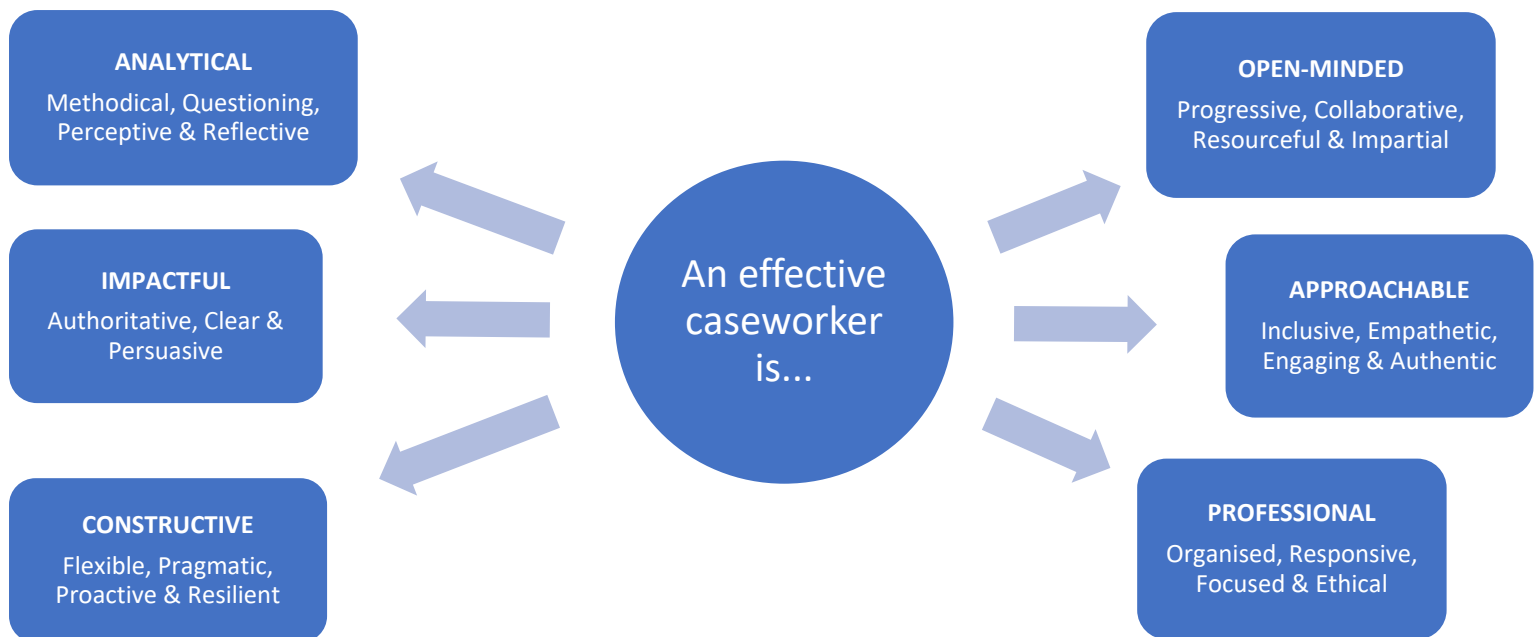

In delivering its consumer dispute resolution services across a wide range of industries and sectors, CEDR seeks to adhere to, and where possible build upon, the competencies set out in the Ombudsman Association’s Caseworker Competency Framework, which was created in 2018 and sets out what is considered to be good practice in the way in which caseworkers interact with others and make decisions.

CEDR’s caseworkers

CEDR supports its service users in many different ways. A caseworker is a member of staff who has a direct role in helping to resolve a complaint. This includes staff members who give advice, carry out investigations and make decisions on cases.

Caseworkers at CEDR can be distinguished into two groups: administrative caseworkers, who are those engaged in the administration of cases; and adjudicative caseworkers, comprising the adjudicators, conciliators, arbitrators and other neutrals who carry out case investigations and evaluate the merits of cases in order to reach decisions.

Complaints referred to CEDR may be resolved by mutual agreement between the parties, in which case users will have contact with perhaps one administrative caseworker. Alternatively, a complaint may involve a full investigative adjudication and assessment of its merits, where an adjudicative caseworker will be involved. Different CEDR caseworkers will become involved depending on the unique circumstances of each case.
